UNIVERSITY OF MADRAS

NOTIFICATION

A course of University lectures about twenty in number will be delivered by Mr E H Neville Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge beginning about January 5 1914 and lasting about five weeks The lectures will probably be held at about 4 30 p m in the Presidency College Madras but fuller details will be published later

For the benefit of those who can attend the lectures for only one week the lecturer will deliver in the first week two lectures on "The Nature of Real and Complex Numbers" and two lectures complete in themselves on "Different Geometry" The remainder of the course will be taken up by a more detailed treatment of this latter subject

The subject of the main course is "Moving Axes and Differential Geometry" and only such persons are likely to benefit by it as have read up to a University M A standard in Mathematics

While the lecturer will employ an original method those who wish to attend are recommended to consult (after one of the usual textbooks) either Darboux's Theorie generale des Surfaces or Eisenhart's Differential Geometry

Those who wish to attend these lectures should apply at once to the Registrar University of Madras for tickets of admission stating whether they wish to attend during the first week only or during the whole course Those who are not Masters of Arts of this University are requested to inform the undersigned of their standard of Mathematical attainments
